Content Server Tuned to your Business

You wouldn't take a new car onto a racing circuit and expect it to be immediately competitive. So why do organizations take off-the-shelf enterprise software and expect it to operate seamlessly within their existing environment?

Would you play your instrument out of pitch within an orchestra? Would you listen to a crackly radio station distorted by static noise? Or would take your family car onto a racing circuit and expect to finish in a podium position? The answer is, no... Yet, time and again organizations take industry leading off-the-shelf enterprise software, such as OpenText Content Server, and expect it to support their existing business processes with little or no tuning - for year after year.

Whether a musical instrument, a radio, or a car, tuning is an essential part of making products perform at their best. And your Content Server environment is no different.

OpenText Content Server tuned for your business

At Fastman, we help businesses tune and extend Content Server. With over 15 years of OpenText experience, we understand Content Server and will guide you to the heights of what is possible with your investment.

Knowing what can be achieved is as important as knowing what you want to achieve. We continually seek new and better ways to optimize our client's Content Server experience and enable them to reach their business goals and beyond. Working together, we will simplify your complex processes, design integrated business applications that support your unique use-cases, and ease the life of your end users and system administrators.

We help you make lasting improvements and realize your most important business objectives, based on the most proven and versatile ECM platforms available. Your risk is lowered, your ROI improved.

A partnership based on joint values

We see our clients as our partners, and helping you achieve success is what drives us. As a company and as individuals, we measure our success based on the business impact and long-term success our solutions provide to you.

Many of our clients have been our business partners for 10 years or more. They place their trust in us and rely on us to ensure that Content Server integrates seamlessly into their everyday business routine. By partnering together to solve complex Content Server challenges they have reduced costs, been able to make informed business and technical decisions, and delivered fast and demonstrable returns on their ECM investment.

Fastman can do the same for you.

Solving your high-value Content Server challenges

At Fastman we understand how to solve high-value Content Server business problems and technical challenges. When you work with Fastman you're working with a team of business and technology experts that each bring their unique OpenText experience to the project. This knowledge, combined with the intellectual property that we have accumulated over 15 years, enables us to provide our clients with more robust solutions that are delivered in a faster timescale and with lower risk.

Don't let your Content Server turn into just another departmental repository. If you need to increase user adoption, simplify administrative tasks or develop integrated content-centric applications, you need Content Server tuned for your business. Talk to us now.

To find out more or talk to us about tuning your Content Server environment visit www.fastman.com

Fastman »
SAFE, SIMPLE, SECURE