Data Sheet

Fastman Platform for Transportation & Logistics

Whether we're talking about Bills of Lading, Tax Certificates, or Proof of Delivery notes; documentation forms an essential part of the overall transportation and logistics process. With much of this documentation coming in the form of paper, ensuring that it is captured, stored, distributed, and managed in a controlled and efficient manner is vital to the success of every logistics operation.

Transforming your logistics operations

By providing efficient management and real-time access to documentation for all interested parties from anywhere in the world, Fastman enables logistics companies to reduce costs, eliminate risks and increase profitability. Through our long-term partnership with OpenText, we deliver automated document management solutions that provide structure to your processes, bring transparency to your data, and scale with your business.

As an importer of records, Fastman transforms your business. We enable transportation and logistics operations around the globe to:

- Centralize documentation into a single, managed repository
- Significantly reduce the cost and effort associated with managing paper-based documentation
- Gain real-time access to the latest content, from anywhere in the world
- Improve communication internally, with customers, suppliers and with regulatory authorities
- Fly through regulatory and routine Customs audits

Automated document management and processes

The Fastman logistics platform quickly captures paper-based documentation, storing it into a central repository for easy management. By providing framework structures, with content placeholders, our transaction templates ensure compliance; making sure that the right documentation is in place for each and every shipment. Using automated business workflows, the correct data can be captured and reviewed before each shipment is approved.

Documentation can be readily searched and recalled on-demand through a standard web-browser, ensuring that all interested parties have access to the latest documentation in real-time, from anywhere in the world. Additionally, a stringent permissions and record management model ensures that your information remains intact and compliant, allowing only the appropriate people to view, update or remove content.

Uncovering business opportunities

By providing a common repository for all your transactional documentation, Fastman enables true digital transformations to take place. Reporting tools and automated notifications provide new ways of viewing and working with your data. Hidden trends can be quickly identified and more efficient operational processes implemented. With many logistics companies looking to expand the range of services they provide, this information enables you to quickly identify those areas with the most significant opportunity and avoid those with little return.

Fastman is the leading partner for OpenText solutions to the logistics industry. Through our offices in the US, Asia and Europe, we provide local support and expertise to logistics companies around the globe. If optimizing your logistics documentation processes is a priority, then contact Fastman to learn how we can transform your logistics operation.

Learn more about how we can transform your logistics operation, visit www.fastman.com